Mission, Vision, & History

Mission

To change individual lives, instill hope, increase self-worth and facilitate independence, through quality housing, employment, and related supportive services.

Vision

Strengthening communities by providing the blueprint and tools for individuals to rebuild their lives and reach their full potential.

National History

On March 8, 1896, Ballington Booth, the son of the Salvation Army founders, and his wife, Maud Charlesworth Booth, the refined daughter of an Anglican rector, made a bold announcement. In the Great Hall of New York City's Cooper Union, they pronounced to a crowd of thousands the birth of a new organization dedicated to serving the spiritual and material needs of the poor and disadvantaged - Volunteers of America.

Maud and Ballington envisioned a movement committed to "reaching and uplifting" the American people. On behalf of the new organization, the Booths pledged to "go wherever we are needed, and do whatever work comes to hand," a declaration that has guided Volunteers of America's outreach efforts ever since.

The name Volunteers of America was chosen by our founders, Ballington and Maud Booth, when the organization was founded over 123 years ago. They volunteered to dedicate their hearts, spirits, and lives to help reach and uplift people in need. Our name meant the organization was comprised of people voluntarily choosing to help others. Back in 1896, a volunteer was anyone who was committed to a mission or cause.
